WOMAN TRACED SPOUSE BY TRUNK

Came From San Francisco
but Lost Clew Here.

ASKS CHIEF DESMOND'S AID SAYS HER HUSBAND DESERTED HER AUG. 3'

Money and Her Jewels Also Disappeared, She Declares—Three Trunks
Were Checked Here and She Followed Wrong One.

Mrs. Margaret Schirmer, after displaying marked detective ability in tracking her husband, Philip Schirmer, all the way from San Francisco to St. Louis, lost the trail at Union Station, and Saturday morning called at police headquarters, and with the aid of Chief of Detectives Desmond in assisting her in completing her mission.

Detective John Howard has been detailed on the case and he is working in conjunction with Mrs. Schirmer.

Mrs. Schirmer is an attractive-looking woman, and she's determined to locate her husband and effect a settlement of the grievance she holds against him.

According to the information filed with Chief Desmond by Mrs. Schirmer, Philip Schirmer, who is a cabinet maker, and who has always considered his salary, left her Sunday night, Aug. 3.

The Schirmers lived at 129 Turk street, San Francisco. On that night Mr. and Mrs. Schirmer went out to pass the evening with friends. While they were at their friends' house, Mr. Schirmer arose and excused himself, saying that he had to return to his home, but asked his wife to remain, saying that he would return for her.

Her Money and Jewels Gone.

That was the last she ever saw of him. When she returned home that night she saw that the house had been visited. All of her husband's clothing had disappeared. He did not leave without $1,000 and $500 money that she had received a short while before as the outcome of a damage suit against the city of Chicago, was also gone. Mrs. Schirmer had fallen through a defective pavement in Chicago and had been unsuccessful in her damage suit.

Mrs. Schirmer realized that she had been deserted by her husband, after having been married to him for 11 years. She determined to locate him, if possible. She did not report the case to the San Francisco police, but set out herself, to accomplish her mission. She followed numerous clews and it was not until Aug. 15 that she was certain she was on his trail.

Then she learned that her husband had been staying at 302 Van Ness avenue, where he had gone by the name of Mr. Fritz. He was accompanied by a woman who was known as Mrs. Frank. Mrs. Schirmer submitted a photograph of her husband and it was instantly recognized by the proprietress of the Van Ness avenue house. But, Mrs. Schirmer was informed that "Fritz" and "Mrs. Frank" had left the night before for St. Louis.

The woman told Mrs. Schirmer that they had bought a ticket over the Santa Fe, and that they carried one trunk which she described. Mrs. Schirmer went to the baggage office of the Santa Fe and got descriptions of the baggage that had been checked to St. Louis on the day that her husband had left.

Followed Trunk to This City.

There were only three trunks checked for St. Louis that day. One was numbered 27,365. The other two trunks were numbered 48,231 and 48,235. As her husband was supposed to carry only one trunk Mrs. Schirmer supposed that the single trunk was the one she was after. She at once bought a ticket for St. Louis and followed on the 13th.

She was less than one day behind the trunk she was pursuing. She reached St. Louis on the morning of the 19th. The trunk she was pursuing reached St. Louis on the night of the 18th. She got to the baggage department at Union Station in time to learn that the trunk numbered 27,365 had been rechecked to Moberly, Mo. Mrs. Schirmer bought a ticket for Moberly and went there on the same train that the trunk did. She was sure that she had her husband located, and she waited at the depot in Moberly for him to claim his trunk.

An expressman called for it. Mrs. Schirmer called a cab and followed the trunk to its destination. Her disappointment knew no bounds when the express wagon drove up to a private residence and a young man received it.

Mrs. Schirmer talked with the owner, who proved to be a Mr. Rondley, a nurseryman, who had been to California on a business trip. Then Mrs. Schirmer, disappointed but not discouraged, retraced her steps to St. Louis and asked Chief Desmond to assist her in locating the other two trunks, whose numbers and descriptions she gave him.

Mrs. Schirmer says that even in the case she fails to locate her husband in St. Louis she will follow him across the continent, and, if necessary, across the ocean.

LAST OF VETERANS OF 1812. Only Survivor of That Conflict Dying at 103 Years of Age.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Word has reached this state, that Abram Crone, the only survivor of the conflict of 1812 up to the present, passed away yesterday and believed to be the only survivor of that conflict, is dying at his home there. Crone is in his one hundred and third year and has had the distinction of having lived in three centuries.

About three months ago his health began to fail, and for some time he has been confined to bed and daily growing weaker. He spends much of his time sleeping. Last week he slept for three days and two nights, and now he sleeps quietly at night. During the day he sleeps quietly during the day.

Exequies will be held for the end of the month.

NO CONTEST OVER WILL OF MRS. FAIR

SO THE MOTHER AND OTHER RELATIVES DECLARE.

THEY ARRIVE IN SAN FRANCISCO

Report of a Compromise So That the Estate Can Be Settled and Claims
Adjusted Out of Court.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 23.—Mrs. Hannah Nelson, mother of the late Mrs. Charles L. Fair, has arrived here from her home in Newmarket, N. J. She is accompanied by her son, A. G. Nelson, who conducts a general merchandise business at Plainfield, N. J., and his wife, Mrs. Charles L. Fair by marriage, and his wife are also here.

Mrs. Nelson is 70 years old and she was recently taken ill by her journey across the continent. Joseph Harvey, the life-long friend of Charles Fair, and Charles S. Neal, manager of the Fair estate, went to Reno, Nev., to meet Mrs. Nelson and her son. Harvey and Neal also met Charles J. Smith, a brother of the late Mrs. Fair at Reno, who came to this city from New York, and Mr. Cole. Mrs. Nelson declined to talk for publication, but to Mr. Harvey she said:

"I don't care what becomes of my share of the estate, but do you see my children get all they are entitled to."

A. G. Nelson said: "There will be no contest over the estate, and we are all content to let my mother stay with us."

Mr. Neal is the half-brother of the late Mrs. Fair.

He said: "We have agreed to let my mother stay with us."

The Call this morning says:

"It is not generally known that the Fair wife is here to help settle the estate of the relatives of Mrs. Fair that they can take possession of certain properties of the estate. To this estate will also probably come the late Mrs. Fair's money. Whether the amount will be has not yet been settled upon. The details of the compromise have not yet been discussed."

WINNING A MILLION

If you were Mr. Schenck,
And I were breaking down beneath
My million-dollar job,
Would you be the man that are fair,
Keep me supplied with car fare,
To carry on the warfare
Of life, which keeps me busy
And makes the path smooth,
If you were Mr. Carnegie

And I were McNamee,

O. R. JOYCE.

Maurice Barrymore used to be the champion amateur middle-weight of England when he was a youngster, and nothing delighted him more than a lively scrap, but he was a better fighter with his wits than he was with his mitts.

His wife, Georgia Drew-Barrymore, said:

"I am sure that Barrymore is a better fighter with his wits than he was with his mitts."

In fact "Barry" had the latchkey habit. You know what an awful thing that is. When a man once becomes addicted to it, it gets so deep-rooted that no Keeley cure can cease it. It is there, and there to stick.

One morning "Barry" came rolling home just as his wife, who was a Catholic, was going to mass.

"Good morning, Mrs. Barrymore," airyly exclaimed the irrepressible Maurice. "Just getting up?"

"No, sir," replied Mrs. Barrymore haughtily and gaily. "I am going to church, sir, while you, sir, are going to the devil!"

But this is neither here nor there.

We were speaking about the moonlight yesterday. That is, the moonlight at 3 o'clock yesterday morning, which you did not see.

It was beautiful. There is no doubt about that, but there are things in this world even more beautiful than moonlight. One of them is woodsy greenness.

In this particular instance man has improved on nature, as any observer may prove to his own satisfaction by inspecting a magnificent prospect in the immediate vicinity of St. Louis.

A series of photographs of it will be presented for your delectation by tomorrow's Sunday Post-Dispatch.

Now, there is in St. Louis another spot which is just as beautiful in its way as the one mentioned.

It is a spot which you have seen ten thousand times. But you passed without noticing it, because you do not know it, because the curse of business have closed your eyes to the fact that something remarkable is so close at hand.

You will be delighted with this picture and hall it an old friend.

You will find it on the first page of tomorrow's Sunday Post-Dispatch.

Mary MacLane is at Newport. She is seeing all the sights. She is learning more every day she is there than she could have learned at Butte in hundred years—no, make it two hundred.

The Sunday Post-Dispatch afforded her this great opportunity for study and observation and she has fully recorded her impressions for that great newspaper, and they will be published next Sunday.

Remember, this feature has been prepared especially and exclusively for the Sunday Post-Dispatch. No other newspaper has heard of it or can get it. That is why we tell you of it in advance, so that you may prepare yourself for the surprise.

A portion of Miss MacLane's manuscript will be reproduced in fac-simile.

Tore are a few other matters of interest which you will find in tomorrow's Sunday Post-Dispatch.

How to live as long as you desire—100 years or more;

A great railroad fight with peculiar features in which a St. Louis man is the central figure;

How to learn to risk your neck without breaking it; a school for learning how to loop the loop and to engage in similar thrilling pastimes and enjoy them;

Where the code of morals for men and women is the same; one of Uncle Sam's most notable communities in many respects;

Why fear kills men;

How the insidious penny has invaded Hawaii, and what is it doing;

St. Louis gold hunters who believe that Nome will be the Eldorado of the future, eclipsing all other fields;

Exquisite gowns for the end of the season;

CAMELS ON STREET CAUSED A RUNAWAY

KINGBOLT BROKE AND CARRIAGE WHEELS SEPARATED.

OCCUPANTS NOT INJURED

Mrs. Dougherty and Grandchildren Remained in Cab When It Fell Forward With Front Wheels Gone.

The breaking of the king bolt to the barouche in which Mrs. M. Dougherty of No. 314 Lawton avenue was driving with her two little grandchildren Friday afternoon caused an accident that narrowly missed being a more serious one. The majority of the big escaped injuries except Roland Duncan, the driver, who was badly bruised.

Mrs. Dougherty was enjoying an afternoon drive. Sitting in the carriage with the two children, James Macguire and his sister, Kate, the boy is 9 years old and the little girl 7.

The coachman was seated in front. The barouche was driven out Lindell boulevard, and down the Taylor avenue came abreast of three camels led by some Turks in their native costume.

They were on their way to a side show at the Dogan's Garden.

The horses became frightened at the unusual sight and attempted to run away. The driver tried to hold them, but failed; ever, but in the tugging and pulling the king bolt was broken and the front part of the carriage was torn from the rest.

The driver was thrown from his seat on the dashboard and the thoroughly frightened horses dashed out towards Forest Park, dragging the front wheels with them.

Mrs. Dougherty and the children were thrown forward with the rig went down, but escaped being thrown to the street.

The coachman was found to be badly injured, but recovered quickly and home after they were stopped by pedestrains several blocks distant.

Mrs. Dougherty, wife of M. Dougherty, the wholesale grocer at Twelfth and Pine streets. The barouche was badly damaged.

SUABIAN SOCIETY TO HOLD 20TH ANNUAL FESTIVAL SUNDAY

THE SUABIAN FESTIVAL JOKE.

SUABIAN FESTIVAL

One of the pictures used in the Suabian festival advertising represents the head of a Suabian family applying to the mayor of Friedrichshafen for airship passage to America. He tells the mayor that he has read of so many railroad accidents that he does not want to risk his family in that method of transportation.

Native Dancer of Suabia Will Be Feature of Entertainment at Concordia Park.

At Concordia Park Sunday and Monday the South St. Louis Suabian Society will hold its 20th annual harvest festival.

In the little German province of Suabia the harvest festival is as important as the Fourth of July in America and the Suabians have observed it religiously ever since there were enough of them to make an appropriate demonstration.

The celebration of the St. Louis Suabian national society is a great affair. The dresses of the women are bright and many-hued and the costumes of the men are varied in style and variety.

The national dance of Suabia is always a feature of these celebrations. This year the dancing will take place on a platform erected in the park, and the Suabians will be sheathed with wheat and rye and covered with fruits and field and vineyard products.

After the dancing there will be a grand supper.

William Seeger, 18, South Jefferson

Ave., vice-president; William Schmidt, corresponding secretary; 1701 Geyer avenue, recording secretary; Christ Zimmermann, 343 California avenue, treasurer, and Charles Sommer, 1833 California avenue, master of ceremonies.

Thirty-six girls and forty men will participate in the dance on this platform. They will be costumed as peasants and the music accompanying their evolutions will be provided by a band.

The Suabian population and their friends always turn out en masse for the harvest festival or the "Schwabenfest," as it is called, in the Suabian towns and cities.

It is a secret and benevolent organization. Its officers are:

William Seeger, president; Sam Jefferson, vice-president; Edward S. How, general manager; Mr. and Mrs. John D. Bohn, the transit company surgeon, sold his injuries were not serious.

It was at 1 o'clock Saturday morning when the accident occurred. Mr. Ira Welch Found a Cook and Thinks That the Jewel Bag Fell From His Pocket on Street.

Good servant girls are considered priceless jewels by many, but Mrs. Ira Welch, of 451 Washington avenue, is not sure that the new one she has is worth the price paid for her.

As Mrs. Welch was to be alone in the house, she thought the bag and its contents would be safer in Mr. Welch's pockets.

Mr. Welch placed the bag in his trousers pocket and started on his trip for a cook.

Friday morning he intended to put the jewels in a safe deposit vault, but when he looked for them, the bag was missing.

He is sure the bag was lost while he was riding down town in an Olive street car, but does not think his pocket was picked.

When he reached for his car fare, he thinks his must have pulled the bag from his pocket.

As he was sitting on an end seat, he believes it might have dropped to the street.

Before he left home, Mrs. Welch handed him a chamois bag containing the following

The Fall Term of the Bryant & Stratton College.

A new term of the day and night school will open Monday, Sept. 1, and pupils may enter on and after Aug. 25 by applying at the college office, 501-507 Century building, from 8:30 to 10 a.m.

Thornton instruction is given in all the commercial and English branches, the Pitman and Gregg systems of shorthand, typewriting and telegraphy.

Business men are constantly applying at the college office for stenographers, bookkeepers, etc., such calls being largely in excess of the number of graduates desiring positions, and, therefore, young people who wish to attend school with a view of bettering themselves, will find that a course of study in this school will be a safe investment.

Write for circular, or apply at the college office, fifth floor of Century building, corner Olive and Ninth streets.

"BROWNS WILL NOT GET PITTSBURG PLAYERS"

Member of New York Baseball Party Says McGraw Has Positive Information to This Effect—

McGraw Not With the Team.

Hopes of the American League St. Louis club's adherents of finding up some of the best Pittsburgh baseball talent for next season will have to go glimmering, on the statement of a member of the New York baseball party now stopping at the Southern Hotel.

According to information Wagner, one of those expected to come to St. Louis, by Pittsburgh grapevine telegrams, has positively signed for next year with Barney Dreyfuss' Chicago team and signed his contract, and Jack O'Connor is still free to rove wherever fancy and a fat salary dictate.

The statement is made on the authority of one who is close to the councils of the

New York club and who is intimate with McGraw. The information came from McGraw himself.

McGraw is not with the Giants at present, but it will not be until he has accomplished his mission of depleting the ranks more fortunate clubs to fill out his own.

The Post-Dispatch's informant states that Chesbro and Leach are the only men left of the Pittsburgh team that are not signed with the "Pirate" management for next season.

It is also stated positively that Delehanty and Lajoie will play with the New York Club next season. McGraw while in Washington completed the deal with Delehanty and Lajoie. The salaries of the men were paid to each player who was not a manager at the same time.

Brooklyn 5, Pittsburgh 2.
Philadelphia at Cincinnati.

Kane Once Beat Waddell.

Kane has on his record a game pitched against Waddell in which he beat the eccentric Philadelphia twirler. Both were playing on teams in the California League, and Kane won out in a pitcher's battle.

With the Philadelphia club behind him, Waddell gave Kane no chance to repeat, and numberless safeties were made off the St. Louis delivery. He was whanged for 12 runs all told, while the most the visiting team could tally in the eight rounds in which they faced Waddell was a total of four for the game.

In all Kane was hit 16 times safely and gave six passes to first. In addition he had a bad inning; in fact, one of the worst that could happen, and six runs were tallied in the sixth inning, ending all hope the visitors might have had of winning one game of the series.

Joe Sugden was in the game again and perpetrated a wild blunder, with other mistakes by the Browns helped Kane to take a third straight victory in the sad sixth.

Not a game of the series have the Browns had a chance to win, and the Philadelphia team are still standing in first place, that is, as standins go in this fast American League race.

most of us want the answer in black and white, and with authority behind it. For this reason the Post-Dispatch department of "Answers to Correspondents" is one of the most popular features in its great system of public service. There are some foolish questioners, but readers find this method of obtaining information invaluable.

The telephone has its legitimate uses, which nothing else can do as well. Should an attempt be made to extend its field too far, it would end in crippling it so far as these uses are concerned.

Accommodations for the hosts of visitors to St. Louis in 1904 must be fully provided. Upon the management of this part of the great Exposition depends largely the success of the vast enterprise. If we can offer the world plenty of room and plenty to eat it will come to us and will not hurry away.

ARBITRATE THE STRIKE.

An editorial in the New York World, entitled "Stop the Strike," published Wednesday, brings out emphatic responses from all parts of the country.

The sum of all opinions is that the policy of the operators is a strike against the public need and the universal welfare." Representative men and men of affairs everywhere express themselves with vigor on what is now a very grave emergency.

Bishop Potter, who has just returned from Europe, says: "The operators still refuse to recognize the unions, I learn. That is too bad. They certainly should do it. Their position is false. They will treat with individual representatives but stubbornly refuse to acknowledge that the unions have any right to recognition. We all have the right to organize and protect our interests in any laboring field. We have the right to organize in matters which affect our individual and combined interests, and now this non-recognition of the unions seems to be one of the greatest difficulties to surmount."

Of this tenor are the replies from state executives. Gov. Kimball of Rhode Island declares that the master should be referred to an "impartial tribunal"; Gov. Leard of Louisiana would hail arbitration with joy as humane and patriotic; Gov. Dickey of Missouri says the people of Missouri favor arbitration. Others speak of the same effect, with whom concur mayors, clergymen and business men.

The sentiment seems to be practically unanimous. It needs only to be organized to bring it into action, and there should be no delay. Many manufacturing plants in the East are suffering for fuel, and the Pittsburgh mills are about to close down. Want of anthracite produces a dislocation which throws the entire system of business of the country into confusion. Directly and indirectly the loss is enormous.

A great national calamity is impending. The will and reason of the people must enforce a settlement.

Financier Russell Sage declares that if continued the combination will result in financial ruin, not only to those interested but to the country. But Russell Sage is neither in the White House nor in Congress.

HEADLIGHT ON TROLLEY CARS.

The coroner's jury finds that in the King case the motorman was to blame for the killing and maiming. He did not see the company of maimers in the covered wagon, but he ought to have seen them.

Now, it is understood, the case will be laid before the grand jury, and an indictment may be found.

This may be called for by the circumstances of the case, but if the motorman is to be indicted for not seeing in the dark why not indict the officials who send cars tearing through the streets without headlights?

Motormen frequently run by passengers on dark corners because they cannot see them; and it is not wonderful that they sometimes run down people who unwarily get on the tracks in dark streets.

There should be a headlight on every trolley car, with power enough to illuminate the track for at least half a block forward.

In four years of the city administration preceding the present one, only 480 dog licenses were issued. Since Jan. 1 of this year 24,000 have been issued. Still there are many unlicensed dogs. It seems to have been a mistake that the dog tax could not be collected.

President Baer's idea that God in His infinite wisdom has provided us with the hard coal monopoly will be received with considerable derision by coal consumers. They trace the coal monopoly to quite another source.

The case of Forger Becker strongly suggests longer terms of imprisonment for forgers.

Mr. Morgan's desire to have his name left out of the newspapers is a remarkable instance of the modesty of a great man. He doubtless prefers to see all the publicity given to Perkins.

King Alfonso may not be crazy. His actions are very much like those of many other young fellows who are not kings.

POST-DISPATCH SNAP SHOTS.

Fate oleo, we now may know
The difference twist you and butter,
And with a piece of honest grease
We'll cease to murmur and to mutter.

Louisiana O'Leary may live to be Queen of Ireland.

Mr. Pain does anything for the World's Fair with pleasure.

Grover Cleveland has joined the navy in Alton, but not to fish or shoot ducks.

Dr. Lung, the President's physician, has doubtless some knowledge of tuberculosis.

The concatenated Hoo-Hoos will be at the World's Fair and distinguish it to the gayety.

Partner Perkins, Preacher Potter and Peter Power are drawing heavily upon the capital P's.

Whatever you may lack in the way of outside attractions during the World's Fair period will not be missed by our visitors. Our gentlemanly bandits will afford them all the entertainment they desire.

"See Perkins," says Mr. Morgan, when appealed to in regard to the coal strike. Now all the world will want to see Perkins. Is Perkins the intelligence that has inspired the great merger all this time?

ALL PARTIES REPRESENTED.

The story of the conference between President Baer of the Reading railroad and manager for the operators in the coal strike and Senators Quay and Penrose will not be rehearsed on the stump by Republican orators.

The two senators called on Mr. Baer in behalf of peace. They offered their services as arbitrators and begged him to consider their proposal favorably.

He politely declined. Then they argued the question, but he was not moved. Finally Quay told him it would seriously affect politics, and, as to clinch an argument he thought would be convincing, declared that if the strike was not settled a Democratic governor would be elected.

"The glad of it," replied Mr. Baer. "I've been a Jerry Black Democrat for 40 years." Whereupon the two crossfallen senators retired in confusion.

The story is interesting. Mr. Quay took it for granted that the war bane of the Coal Trust could be anything but a Republican.

But it appears from Mr. Baer's admission that there are Democrats among the trust magnates. They represent all kinds of politics.

The increase of $60,000,000 in the collection of city licenses in 18 months is a gratifying exhibit. Business management of city affairs is the first requisite to a New St. Louis.

TELEPHONE UTILITIES.

An interesting article in the Sunday Post-Dispatch tells how a Philadelphia telephone company is enlarging its sphere of usefulness. It undertakes to wake a subscriber at a given moment, to give him the right time to a second, to act as a bureau of information for him and to serve as burglar and fire alarm for his residence or place of business.

Budapest, in Hungary, has a telephone newspaper, whose subscribers get the latest news by phone. This may seem swift.

Hungarians, but Americans prefer to see the latest "Extra," which they can absorb in one minute more news than is told by phone in twenty.

The telephone as an information bureau can hardly be a serious proposition. We are a nation of questioners. We like to know, you know, and there is no satisfying our information on every subject of human interest. But continue to increase.

THE RULING PASSION.

The weather man lay dying.
As even sages must.
He said: "My soul is flying
To a better land, I trust.
And they gathered round to hear him.
And listened for several hours.
But all he said to those near him
Was 'Clear, with proude showers.'

They heard the faintest murmur,
As if the soul had fled.
But then his voice grew fiercer,
And ne snugly raised his head
And whispered: "Let me borrow
Your rainstick a couple of hours,
For this is tomorrow—the morrow
For which I predicted showers."

They asked him what would please him
If I arrived upon the stone,
To comfort, soothe and ease him
To give him a grave at home.
And he said: "When the great, good
Ruler
Snail curtain all my powers,
Just carve on my tombstone: 'Colder
Tomorrow, with probable showers.'"

In Self-Defense.

By FOX T. ERRIER.
I am a dog, and these are dog days. But I am not mad. I want to be organized to bring it into action, and there should be no delay. Many of us have paid taxes, which are sources of revenue to the city, and I am not going to be taken advantage of.

Tom Johnson thinks the country should return to the practice of taking its Presidents from Ohio.

No mayor of St. Louis has had a stunt like that which has failed to roll in Wells. This fact will have to be considered in considering the mayor.

The St. Louis naval recruiting station has done more business than any other. When anything is to be done, whether for peace or war, St. Louis is the place to do it.

GRAND DUKE BORIS' HIGH TIME IN CHICAGO

GRAND DUKE BORIS VLADIMIROVITCH.

Cousin of the Czar Longs to Linger in the City Where Life Seems to Be One Round of Pleasure.

DRINKS CHAMPAGNE FROM A SLIPPER

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 23.—Rag-time music, cheap girls, adventures incognito in the pulsing red-light district, champagne galore and club dinners in swank restaurants were so attractive to the Russian blood royal that Grand Duke Boris Vladimirovitch, cousin of the Czar, has prolonged his Chicago stay from two to ten days. Even now he longs to linger, though he asserts he really must go Sunday.

Grand Duke Boris is but 27, speaks good English, is tall and handsome, and cares little for society. He is returning from eastern Siberia to St. Petersburg and is accompanied by three aides—Lieut. Frederick Frederic, Lieut. Nicholas Strandman and Chevalier De Schreke. After a few formal dinners at clubs and an inspection of the industrial and commercial greatness of Chicago, the duke said to Baron Schlippenbach, Russian consul: "Can't you show me something different? I understand this is a typical American

HIT A SOLDIER.

The Experience of One of Our Men.

The soldier boys who fought during the rebellion went home as a rule in pretty bad shape, caused by exposure and improper food and the use of quantities of coffee which left its mark in the wreck of many a stomach. Merrill Hutchinson of Reading, Mass., tells his experience:

"I am an old soldier, who served all through the War of the Rebellion, and my coffee drinking commenced when I enlisted. I drank it three times a day, and at the close of the war was returned home after a week."

"For years I had dyspepsia of the worst kind, and could not drink anything but warm water or warm milk, nor eat enough to hardly keep a man alive. After suffering this way for years, and half living, I was told by a friend of your Postum Coffee."

"At first I refused to even try it, for I thought it meant more suffering for me, but at last I consented and it did taste mighty good, for I was a dear lover of coffee."

"I waited for the distress in my stomach that always had come with common coffee, but it never came. I drank it at first very carefully, and then got reckless and wanted it every meal, and for over five years now have been drinking nothing else. I have no dyspepsia now, nor trouble about eating anything. My weight when I began using Postum Coffee, Fall, October, was 125 pounds. I am now 120 pounds and weigh about 160 pounds, and am solid and rock and able to do a boy's work with the boys. Now, I do not claim that Cereal is a medicine, but in my both virtuals and drink. I think Postum Coffee is properly made and of coffee."

MILK BILL NOW UP TO THE MAYOR

COUNCIL APPROVED THE HOUSE'S AMENDMENTS.

AWAITS MR. WELLS' SIGNATURE

At Friday afternoon's session the City Council concurred in the minor amendments made to the milk bill by the House of Delegates, and it now awaits only the mayor's signature to become a law.

Councilman Joseph Spiegelhalter, Jr., came near delaying this important measure. He, like Councilman Newell, attended the session in response to a telegraphic summons having started in Sacramento. The summons did not tell why it was wanted. When he arrived at the Council chamber he was informed that his vote was wanted to make the proposed amendment to the milk bill. He immediately became angry and declared the House had no right to amend Council bills.

He declared he would not vote for the amendment, as the bill could not be passed without his vote, the attention of President Hornsby and the other five members present was diverted to the question of what to do in his mind. They finally succeeded in doing so by telling him, in response to a question, that the House would probably vote for an adjournment if the amendments were concurred in.
